Board News From the President

Susan Kranwinkle

Dear Arboretum Friends,

In this fast-paced world in which we live, we all have come to expect change, even rapid change as a way of life. But, little did I know in May when I accepted the job as President of the Board of Trustees of the California Arboretum Foundation that by fall, every week would bring yet another turn, shift or swerve in the affairs of our Arboretum.

It all began in August with the huge budget cut the State passed down to the County and that, in turn, the County Board of Supervisors passed on to the Department of Arboreta. Several solutions to the problem were explored, but the most workable one seemed to be to abolish the Department of Arboreta, thereby eliminating several administrative positions and some of the support services. A couple of options were presented to the four gardens in the Department. They could become part of the Department of Parks and Recreation, or each support group might "privatize" their garden and assume financial and managerial responsibility. The Board of Supervisors agreed to the dissolution of the department, and our Board of Trustees has decided to pursue the privatization line of action.

At the present time, though it could change at any moment, the Department of Arboreta has not yet been officially dissolved. At the same time the Arboretum has been placed under the umbrella of the Department of Parks and Recreation while we negotiate with the county to privatize the Arboretum. We are indeed lucky to have as our representatives two Trustees, Richard Grant and Harry Hufford, who are both very knowledgeable about the workings of the Arboretum.

As you can imagine, there are many problems, questions and issues to be ironed out in an undertaking of this importance, but we are hoping to have an agreement and a contract in six to nine months. This is a giant step for the California Arboretum Foundation, one that cannot be entered into lightly and must be discussed and rehashed with all concerned. We will be taking on a huge responsibility and will need double the help and support that you have all been so willing to give in the past. We are presently looking for a CEO for the new Arboretum management team, someone whose job essentially will be to run the garden and to report to the Board of Trustees.

We were sorry to say goodbye to Beverly Rouse, who served as the Foundation's Director of Development and Executive Director for the last 5 years. During her tenure several important projects were completed: the Peacock Cafe was enlarged; the new Orchid Greenhouse was built; we met the Challenge Grant for new membership and the simulated Rain Forest Environment was started. We wish Beverly well in her new position at Cal Poly Pomona.

Please join us in welcoming the Foundation's interim Executive Director, Judy Morse. She looks forward to meeting the Arboretum's members and friends.

Meanwhile, life goes on at the Arboretum, with a wonderful symposium on English Gardens in Southern California on November 14, the Gift Shop under the capable management of Terry Bible is gearing up for the holidays the Kallam Garden continues to bloom, visitors from all over are finding out about and coming to see the fabulous new Rain Forest section, the volunteers are as devoted as ever and the hard-working Foundation Office keeps pushing for more new members, while never forgetting that you, our long-time members, are the backbone of our organization.

Please don't hesitate to call us at the Foundation Office at 818/447-8207 if you have any questions or any answers to our problems. We will be happy to give you the "latest" update on just what is happening at the Arboretum, though I guarantee what we tell you just might change in the next week.

Sincerely,
Susan Kranwinkle,
President, Board of Trustees

Development News

Baldwin Bonanza XXII

Trustee Susan Kranwinkle thanks Mary Brosius, Honorary Chairman of Baldwin Bonanza XXII

A Living Trust . . .

Helen Shaffer enjoyed attending classes at the Los Angeles Arboretum. She also loved to buy plants at the annual Baldwin Bonanza plant sale.

Ms. Shaffer lived in Glendora until she was 22 years old and then decided upon a career in the military service. She also served in the Red Cross.

Following her miliary career, Ms. Shaffer returned to Glendora in 1974. She frequently visited the Arboretum and gained much satisfaction from its horticultural information and plant material.

When planning her estate, Helen Shaffer decided to include the Arboretum among her beneficiaries and allotted $15,000 for the Arboretum within her Living Trust. The gift was divided between membership and general support of the Arboretum.

Nancy O'Dell, Manager, California State Bank, Arcadia Branch, and John Provine, Arboretum Deputy Director, discuss Project Twilight, the extended hours program co-sponsored by California State Bank and the H. N. and Frances C. Berger Foundation.

Project Twilight a Big Success

On June 15, 1992 the Los Angeles Arboretum extended its operating hours from 5:00 pm until 7:00 pm. These hours were honored through Labor Day, September 7th.

The purpose of extending visiting hours for the public was to encourage more people to use the Arboretum during the summer period. This is the time of year when days are longer and families look for ways to fill up evenings with fun, yet satisfying recreation.

California State Bank and the H. N. and Frances C. Berger Foundation provided grants to make Project Twilight possible.

Many local groups were invited to use the Arboretum during Project Twilight. Methodist Hospital organized an evening walking program on the Arboretum grounds to promote fitness and health. The Childrens Librarian from Arcadia Library presented two Story Hours during the summer months. The Arcadia Chinese School presented a program showcasing hobbies, dancing and games representative of the Chinese culture.

California State Bank sponsored two free admission nights providing free admission to the Arboretum for all visitors.

The Arboretum is a valuable community resource and Project Twilight encouraged new ways for the community to use the Los Angeles Arboretum. Plans are being made to offer Project Twilight again in 1993.

Baldwin Bonanza 1992

President Richard Grant (center) thanks Betty O'Neill (l) President of Las Vols and Trustee Marla Carter (r) for creating a very successful Baldwin Bonanza. The funds raised from the twenty-second annual plant sale and the Foundation's first Barbecue and Garden Auction were allocated to support the maintenance of the grounds.

Around the Grounds

Autumn Color at the Arboretum

This year, the Silk Floss Tree, Chorisia speciosa, started its spectacular progression of large, rose-pink flowers in August, earlier than usual. Individual trees of this species are quite variable in their period of bloom, which stretches the collective blooming period of these trees from late summer to early winter. Also, look for the white flowers of the bottle shaped White Silk Floss Tree, Chorisia insignis.

The Red Powderpuff, Calliandra haematocephala, a large shrub whose flowers are showy bundles of silky red stamens, will be in bloom through fall, winter, and early spring.

The Sweet Olive, Osmanthus fragrans, one of our most delightfully scented fragrant plants, is currently in bloom. It will remain so until spring. The white flowers of this large evergreen shrub are small and insignificant, but the fragrance is robust and carries long distances if the breeze is right.

Look for the warm colored flower spikes of the Aloes toward the end of autumn.

The Marri Red Gum, Eucalyptus calophylla, one of the showiest of the small tree eucalyptus, will continue its summer display of deep pink flowers well into autumn. As the weather cools down, many other eucalyptus will also come into flower.

With the onset of fall, many Salvia varieties will add their colorful and abundant flowers to the display of those which have been blooming so dependably through the summer.

Make sure to visit the Kallam Perennial Garden to observe a garden with great variety and year-round appeal undergo its dramatic seasonal changes.

The Tropical Greenhouse always has an ongoing display of blooming orchids and other tropical plants.

Well into fall, many of our deciduous trees start to change color. The foliage of the Sweetgum, or Liquidambar, ranges from bright red to a mixture of red, orange, yellow, and purple. The Chinese Tallow Tree, Sapium sebiferum, turns a brilliant scarlet. The leaves of the Ginkgo Tree, Ginkgo biloba, resemble transluscent yellow tissue paper as they change color and fall to the ground. The autumn foliage of the Red Maple, Acer rubrum, ranges from dull purple, to red, to yellow, to a yellow which appears to be brushed with red. The fall foliage of the Sycamore is a withered brown, but the leaves give off a wonderfully evocative scent that is strongly reminiscent of an eastern fall.

Rain Forest Project

Staff members at the Los Angeles Arboretum are busy working on one of the most exciting new exhibits to appear in a Los Angeles museum setting – a three acre Rain Forest!

Located adjacent to an aquatic habitat (Baldwin Lake - a naturally fed spring lake) the Rain Forest will simulate the general structure of a tropical rain forest, displaying lush foliage and colorful flowers commonly found in this type of habitat.

The Rain Forest will be a showcase for plants of economic, biological, and cultural importance.

Educational elements of the Rain Forest exhibit are being developed in tandem with the landscape component. Fundamental concepts of the Rain Forest will be interpreted for the public through the use of displays, signs and interactive features. Science teachers and administrators from local school districts are meeting with the Arboretum designers to develop a formal unit of course work which would utilize the Rain Forest exhibit explicitly as an outdoor classroom.

The Rain Forest will also serve as a testing area for subtropical and tropical plants which are not presently in cultivation in the Southern California landscape. It will also provide a site for the conservation of rain forest species whose natural habitats are currently endangered.

The Arboretum has served as a bird sanctuary since it was established in 1947. It is recognized as an important preserve not only because of its resident bird population, but also because it is one of the last intact regional wetland stopovers for thousands of migratory birds which travel north and south on the Pacific coast flyway. The Rain Forest is being designed in a manner to provide a special attraction for birds. Plants which provide food and cover for birds will be promoted along the lake edge. Viewing stations will be constructed to allow enjoyment of watching birds without disrupting them.

Rain forests serve as the "lungs" of our planet, helping to cleanse the atmosphere of civilization's by-product, carbon dioxide. Vast potential also exists for development of commercial drugs and other commodities that are yet to be discovered within the exciting layers of the rain forest!

It's Easy Being Green

Saturday, October 10 was the date of the first Environmental Solutions for Home & Garden at the Los Angeles Arboretum. With the theme "It's Easy Being Green", the two day festival attracted peopie with an interest in becoming more aware of how to be effective in conserving natural resources at home and in the garden.

Six expert panelists presented a Solutions Workshop on Saturday morning where such issues as air quality, water conservation, alternative energy, recycling, composting and gardening in an urban environment were examined. Following the presentations, those attending were given the opportunity to ask the panelists questions.

An exhibit area was active with booths presenting interesting products/services including: solar-cooked food, products made from recycled materials, and ozone measuring badges. Organizations participating included Heal the Bay, Council for a Green Environment, The Ralph Parsons Insect Zoo and many more.

On Sunday, demonstrations were presented of electric and natural gas fueled cars. This proved to be a popular program.

Special thanks to Ms. Marilyn Morton, president of the Environmental Affairs Commission for the City of Los Angeles, for serving as moderator for the Solutions Workshop.

Huck Finn Evening

Arboretum members and friends enjoyed a Huck Finn evening. Old fashioned, fun-filled games were played by all. The events included storytelling by Cathy Meechum of the Arcadia Public Library, a pie eating contest and sack races. A special thanks to the following businesses for their donations: Albertson's - Pasadena, Cummings - Arcadia, Hughes - Arcadia, Marie Callender's - Arcadia, San Gabriel & Pasadena, Vince's Tropical Fish - Pasadena.

Girl Scouts Paint the Rain Forest

Arcadia Girl Scouts from Mt. Wilson Vista Council completed more than 30 painted murals now on display in the Rain Forest Exhibit site at the Los Angeles Arboretum. The theme of this competition was "Protect Planet Earth," and the objective was to interpret the importance of saving the earth's rain forests.

The Arcadia Rotary Club sponsored the project. Home Depot of Monrovia donated much of the materials for this project.

A reception was held for all participating Girl Scouts and their leaders on Saturday, October 10 when the winning murals were announced. Five troops were honored and will be given a hosted "behind the scenes" tour of the Rain Forest project by Arboretum staff members. The grand prize, the dedication of the "Tipu tree," was shared by three troops.

The murals will be on display through December 31 and all are invited to visit the Arboretum and view these delightful paintings.

Library Update

The Plant Science Library has just received The New Royal Horticultural Society Dictionary of Gardening, a newly published four-volume work. From the outset, the Dictionary was designed to be useful to gardeners beyond the United Kingdom and the plant hardiness zones, based on the 1990 U.S.D.A. Plant Hardiness Map, are shown on both a U.S. and European map. Reflecting an interest in more correct identification of plants, the concise, informative plant entries are based on contributions from both taxonomists and horticulturists. Some of the larger genera include identification keys. The illustrations are botanically accurate line drawings. There are also entries for classes of plants such as alpines and bulbs and for people of importance in the history of gardening. This is a reference work that will be important for some time to come.

The Library is open to the public from 9:00 am to 5:00 pm, M-F.

Have You Done Your Part?

How serious is the nation's trash-generating and disposal problem? These dramatic statistics should provide a few answers:

- Americans generate 160 million tons of garbage annually.
- That works out to 1400 pounds for every man, woman, and child.
- California leads the other 49 states with 38 million tons.
- That's 2000 pounds of trash per Californian.
- Of the 38 million tons, 10 million tons is green waste which, theoretically, be recycled as perfectly good compost.

Have you done your part for the environment today?

Volunteer News

LAS VOLUNTARIAS Y LOS AYUDANTES

The Arboretum Volunteers

Did you know . . .
That the dictionary defines a VOLUNTEER as "a person who performs or gives his service of his own free will"?

That this addition – "and enjoys doing it" – would describe a very important group at the Arboretum?

That the volunteer roster presently numbers approximately 267 persons, some 50% of whom are over 60 years of age? (Moral: Arboretum volunteering is an ideal way to spend retirement time!)

That 43 new volunteers were enrolled during 1991?

That volunteers outnumber full and part-time staff members by 4 to 1?

That some 201 volunteers render regular, specified services?

That there are:
41 persons serving in the Gift Shop?
30 persons serving as School Tour Guides?
27 persons serving at the Depot
17 persons serving in the Tropical Greenhouse?
16 persons serving in Plant Information?
15 persons serving in the Gardens?
12 persons serving in the Rotunda?
11 persons serving in the Volunteer Greenhouse?
10 persons serving in Propagation ?
9 persons serving in the Speakers Bureau?
9 persons serving in Flower Arranging?
8 persons serving as Walking Tour Guides?

That 52 Arboretum volunteers each put in more than 200 hours per year?

That the minimum wage value of volunteer service would equal or exceed the salary of an additional full-time staff member?

That the Volunteer Coordinator, Maryann Camperi, can be found at (818) 821-3244, and is always glad to discuss Arboretum volunteer opportunities with interested persons?

CONGRATULATIONS ! Now you know. . . and you are a better informed friend and supporter of the Los Angeles County Arboretum.

Earth People Club Volunteers

Fifteen students, most from Arcadia High School, all members of the Earth People Club, began volunteering at the Arboretum last summer. To date they have put in more than 200 hours helping to repair the crumbling walls around the Hugo Reid Adobe. Sandra Snider, the Arboretum's Historical Curator, calls them," one of the most interested and enthusiastic groups I have worked with."

This fall the group gained an additional 20 students. A group of 16 staff the Coach Barn on the weekends. They serve as an information resource to Arboretum visitors by answering questions and distributing information sheets on the Barn and the Queen Anne Cottage. The Earth People are also staffing the Tropical Greenhouse on weekends for chairman Gordon Smith. Several students helped with the Environmental Solutions Fair in October. In the future, we look forward to having them help with special projects. Tim Lindsay has organized them to help plant over 1000 bulbs in November.
